

PROBABLE CAUSE, ARREST, SEARCH AND SEIZURE

TN P.O.S.T. APPROVED

RESTRICTED TO LAW ENFORCEMENT AND CORRECTIONS

Average student evaluations for a 10 year period: 75% Excellent, 22% Above Average

Until it becomes a problem called to the attention of the officer, a supervisor and/or the prosecutor, or it's brought to attention by the public, a Judge or a lawsuit, the fact that a Law Enforcement Officer doesn't really understand - or properly apply - arrest, search and seizure laws are often neglected as a true concern. Topics like defensive tactics and shooting skills rank at the top of the average Officer's list of preferred classes, while report writing and probable cause development rank near the bottom. Still, many Officers fail to realize that their understanding of related guidelines is also important to their career development and professional survival.

Using instruction-based scenarios founded in performance and liability concerns, this training centers on real-life situations to make the topic both interesting and 'applicable' to on-scene performance.

TOPICS INCLUDE:

- An examination of the legal definitions of Probable Cause, Arrest, Search and Seizure.
- A Review/Update on Supreme Court decisions and guidelines governing their application.
- The Application of Probable Cause and Reasonable Suspicion.
 - Probable Cause...what it is, and what it is not.
 - An analysis of the Hierarchy of Proof and its application to on-scene and after-the-fact investigations.
- Using readily available statute, code and guidelines to aid in writing reports for prosecutorial and judicial review.
- A look at Federal and Tennessee Court decisions that impact various aspects of arrest, search and seizure in vehicles, homes and on the street.
 - A review of the "Gant" decision's "Evidence of the Crime of Arrest" standard, and the "Jones" decision's application of the "Trespass Doctrine".

The instructor has been certified to instruct legal topics to Law Enforcement, Corrections and Corrections-Probation personnel. He has instructed legal topics at both the basic and advanced academy levels. Having instructed legal topics to Law Enforcement for over two decades, his instruction and lecture on law and legal guidelines have been employed to train and update line officers, investigators and supervisors from related disciplines on a variety of legal topics ranging from liability to enforcement and investigative concerns.
